The rapidly changing drug use patterns in the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) have led to the development of a new drug use survey, the National Drug Use and Health Survey (NDUHS). This survey will provide information on drug use patterns, including the use of prescription drugs, over-the-counter drugs, and illicit drugs. The survey will also provide information on the health status of the population, including the prevalence of chronic diseases and the use of health services. The survey will be conducted in 1991 and will be the first of a series of surveys that will be conducted every five years.

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 50 percent. In 1990, 15 percent of the population was obese, and by 2000, that number had risen to 23 percent. The increase in obesity is a major public health concern because it is a leading cause of heart disease, diabetes, and other chronic illnesses. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that obesity costs the United States more than $100 billion each year in medical costs and lost productivity.
